DEEPEN

THE FOUR PILLARS
OF A CONSCIOUS RELATIONSHIP

A framework for practicing love as a path of growth, truth, and transformation.

LETTER FROM CHRISTINA WEBER

Most of us were never taught how to love, and now the world is demanding we learn. The old paradigm isn't working. Few of us grew up observing healthy partnerships. Schools don't teach intimacy. And while religion provides structure, it rarely offers the tools for true connection. It sets rules for marriage but not practices for love.

This breakdown is not a failure; it's an invitation. When systems collapse, new ones can emerge. What's rising now is a higher form of partnership: conscious love.

A conscious relationship isn't about comfort or possession. It's about evolution—removing layers of ego, fear, and limiting beliefs while expanding into ever-deeper acts of sharing. Growth comes first, both individually and together, until your very last breath.

That's why I'm making the Four Pillars of a Conscious Relationship and the Proactive Formula more widely known. These practices keep love alive, honest, and transformative. They're what I return to in my own journey, and what I've seen spark profound shifts through WeDeepen, Love Club, and my coaching practice.

And here's what most people don't yet realize: there's an entire relationship industry—a growing ecosystem of experts, tools, and experiences—designed to help you master love. Just as health has biohacking, love now has its own field..

So as you move through these pages, remember:
Love is not a destination.
Love is a practice.
Love is growth.
And your intimacy journey is your life story.

Christina Weber

THE FOUR PILLARS
OF A CONSCIOUS RELATIONSHIP

1

PRIORITIZE GROWTH

No attachment to the outcome.
Growth comes first.

2

OWN YOUR OWN SH*T

Take responsibility for your wounds and reactions.

3

ALL FEELINGS ARE WELCOME

No internal process is condemned.

4

PRACTICE LOVE

In every moment, with every person.

Based on the original teachings by Shelly Bullard, MFT.
Adapted by Christina Weber for WeDeepen.

1 PRIORITIZE GROWTH

No Attachment To Outcome — Growth Comes First.

Most relationships fall apart when growth stops. That's when love starts to feel like a cage instead of freedom.

A conscious partnership flips the script. Instead of asking, "Will this work out?" the deeper question becomes, "Who am I becoming here?"

Growth means healing wounds, speaking your truth, and shedding the patterns that no longer serve. It's about expanding your capacity to share more of you—your time, energy, and heart.

When growth comes first, love stays alive.

2 OWN YOUR OWN SH*T

Take Responsibility for Your Wounds, Reactions, and Patterns

The truth is, your triggers aren't caused by your partner. They come from old wounds and stories inside of you.

When you feel activated, pause and ask: What's this really about?

Blame keeps you stuck. Ownership sets you free. And intimacy can only grow when both people take responsibility for their side of the story.

You already have everything you need to live your destiny. Accountability just clears the path so you can walk it with love.

3 ALL FEELINGS ARE WELCOME

No Internal Process Is Condemned.

Insecurity, sadness, desire, even confusion—these aren't problems. They're signals of your humanity.

This pillar is about safety: the freedom to be fully yourself and share your truth without fear of judgment.

Let yourself and your partner be real, even when it's messy or hard to hear. Authenticity is what turns vulnerability into connection.

Honest expression without blame is magnetic. It builds trust, deepens love, and creates the intimacy your soul is longing for.

4 PRACTICE LOVE

In Every Moment, With Every Person.

Love isn't something you stumble into; it's something you choose, over and over again.

It shows up in your hello, your smile, and your willingness to stay open when it would be easier to shut down.

The practice is simple but never easy: keep asking, What would love do now?

Each time you shed a layer of ego and expand your capacity to give—your time, energy, and heart—you grow in love.

Mastering love is a lifelong journey, and your intimacy story is your life story.

BONUS TOOL

PROACTIVE FORMULA

A 5-STEP METHOD TO TRANSFORM REACTIVITY INTO GROWTH

STEP 1 | AN OBSTACLE OCCURS.

You feel it in your body. Every situation, even challenging ones, is an opportunity for growth.

STEP 2 | YOUR REACTION THE REAL WORK.

Understand that your response itself, not the external event or person, is the true obstacle.

STEP 3 | PAUSE. TAKE A BREATH.

Practice restriction. Interrupt the urge to blame, lash out, or shut down.

STEP 4 | ASK FOR INSIGHT.

Turn inward—or upward. Call on your higher self, the Light, God... love itself. Ask for support.

STEP 5 | RESPOND WITH LOVE, NOT FEAR.

Take a conscious, aligned action—one that reflects your insight and your choice to put growth first.

NOW SEE HOW THESE PRACTICES CAN UPGRADE YOUR LOVE LIFE IN ACTION.

You've learned the Four Pillars and the Proactive Formula. Now watch my talk to see them come alive—through stories and tools you can use right away.

Because love isn't just read, it's lived.